General Information.

The careful observance of the following will aid materially in securing good service.

To call the Central Office, give the bell one sharp turn; then take hand telephone from the hook, place firmly against the ear and listen for the operator, who will answer; give operator the number of the party with whom you wish to communicate, and the operator will at once make the call for you, or report that the line called for is in use.

After getting the party called for, and finishing the conversation, return the hand telephone to the hook, giving the bell one sharp turn, to notify the operator that you have completed your conversation.

Answer your own calls promptly. It is impossible to give quick service unless this is done.

Prompt and-courteous treatment is an established rule of this Company, and any deviation therefrom upon the part of its representatives will receive immediate attention if reported to the office at Nashville, Tenn., by telephone, without expense to you, or by mail.

Long Distance and Local Toll Line.

Three minutes are allowed for one message; for each minute in addition to the first three minutes, a charge of one-third of the three minute rate will be added.

No charge will be made for toll line service when a party is called for and cannot be found. The party making the call will be informed by the operator that such party is not to be had, but if further information is requested and given, it will be considered a message.

Representatives of the Company are all supplied with lists of cities and towns connected with the system, and rates to each point.

Subscribers will be held responsible for all messages sent over toll lines from their telephone.

This Exchange is connected by metallic lines with the Long Distance Telephone system.

May 1, 1900.
